

Mural Wall, Church's Building

In a project that both shields an eyesore in the community and showcases a warm community spirit, the construction of a mural to beautify the Church's Building in East Street, Rockhampton proceeded with generous community donations.

Woollam Constructions organised the sheet ply across the Church's Building and approached local painters to supply materials and labour to paint the ply sheets of which these businesses were quick to respond with their support.

Mayor of Rockhampton, Cr Margaret Strelow said she was grateful to these local businesses that had displayed a 'roll your sleeves up' attitude to solving the problem of the Church's Building, which had proven extremely difficult to resolve.

"It goes to show that community spirit is still alive and well in Rockhampton," Cr Strelow said.

Woollam Constructions' representative, Trevor Black said with major events coming into Rockhampton he was glad to be a part of this project which was important for civic pride.

"We're happy to lend a hand in fixing the problem. We live in a beautiful City with a great community, and we want people to see that," Mr Black said.
