

Red Hill Homemakers Centre

Client: Karnew Properties Pty Ltd

Construction completed: October 2007

Construction costs: $3 million

The Red Hill Homemakers Centre, stage two, was a challenging project that faced tight time-frames and logistical problems, due to the limited access, and size of the sites for two buildings, while the complex remained completely operational during the construction period.

The facility included tilt-up exterior walls, strong exterior colours and a well-lit and spacious interior.

The project also included the interior fit-out of the Australia Post tenancy, construction of a pump house, and a storage facility for an existing tenant.

Client Comment: "Woollam's understood the complexities of retail construction when we have found many other contractors do not. Their willingness to help accommodate the requirements of any new tenancies, in particular Australia Post, they assisted in the design and constructed the fit-out within a one week program.

As a complete team, from their office administration to site staff, we would have no hesitation in working with Woollam Constructions again or recommending them for future projects."
